THE DAY WHEN THE AMERICAN MOVES.

This is May Day, a day devoted in "Merric England" to the elevation of the Maypole and the chimne; sweep; in Scotland to gathering May dew, which must not be confounded with mountain dew; in Europa generally to agitating laboring men, and in the United states to moving household goods and chattels. In America the truckman is "king o' the May, mother." In Great Britain the people have a proverb- Three noves are as bad as a fire." The American house-iolder must acknowledge that the proverh might with holder must a showledge that the prover haight with and force be adopted in this country. He is a slave of the "moving habit" and he knows it. "David the king," says an old song, was much moved and grieved. He went to his chamber and wept. The American householder, much moved and grieved, goes to his chamber to "cuss" when moving day comes round. But, in spite of everything, next moving fay he generally moves again, and it may safely be saly that a large preportion of the families of New York, with their large and penates and chairs and things, are on the streets to day in transit.

The Aidermen's Committee on Bridges and Tunnels gave another hearing yesterday in reference to the project of the New-York and Long Island Railroad Company for building New-York and Long Frank Railroad Company for boilding a tunnel five miles in length across this city and under the East River, to connect with the Hudson River Railroad East River, to connect with the Hudson River Railroad and the Elevated Railway system, at a cost of $5,000.000. Alderman Dowd and all the committee were in attendance. Patrick McCabe, representing the 'Long-hor-men's Union, opposed the tonnel. He said that 50,000 residents, workmen and storekeepers along the waterfront would be injured, from a commercial point of view, by the scheme. The "dishonorable methods of the Dock Commissions". The "dishonorable methods of the Dock Commissioners" and the "vampire contractors of tunnel fame" met with the speaker's severe condemnation. His views were backed by Stephen Haggard and Roger Burke, also longshoremen, and by James Hefferman, a coal dealer. The last named told the Aldermen that a vote for the tunnel meant their effect at the full election. defeat at the fall election.

Colonel A. D. Palmer, the company's counsel, advocated the work, and denied a statement that it was proposed to connect with another tunnel. The final hearing will take
